Why is HMRC investigating?

In the UK we live in an environment whereby the taxpayer is responsible for assessing their own tax liability. HMRC opens investigations to see if the taxpayer has paid the right amount of tax on a random or selective basis. HMRC can consider all aspects of taxation and more recently HMRC have also used investigations to ensure that the measures put in place to support the economy through the Covid-19 pandemic have been utilised correctly.

What could an investigation involve?

HMRC will write to you or visit your business premises. They will potentially want to review all your books and records or will ask for more detailed information about specific transactions on your Tax Return. At the end of the investigation HMRC may look to raise an assessment for additional tax due. If you are subject to investigation we will respond to HMRC's requests for information and/or attend meetings with HMRC. We will provide our workings with detailed explanations and we can dispute any assessment for additional tax due.

Beware of “Connect”!

HMRC now uses a sophisticated database called 'Connect' to start more than 80% of tax enquiries. The system collects data from 30 different sources, including UK and offshore banks, Companies House, the Land Registry, estate agents, the DVLA and other licensing authorities, and social media. Using 'Connect', HMRC can now target enquiries more accurately than ever before – but they still get it wrong sometimes. That's why we will always challenge HMRC regarding their reasons for an investigation when defending clients.
